Part 2: Project

To be completed after finishing the book.

Below you will find several choices for possible projects. They are all quite different from one another, so I am confident at least one of them will strike you as interesting. No matter which project you choose, you will receive two grades: one for originality and creativity, and one for the level at which your project reflects an understanding of the book. If you have any questions about any of these projects, please feel free to email me as soon as possible at bfehlner@westmorelandschool.org. Remember, the idea here is to show both your creativity and your understanding of the book.

Choice #1 – Video Game

Design a video game based on the book Al Capone Does My Shirts. You must describe the overall game design and appearance. Then, pick five chapters to represent the “levels” of the game. Each level should have its own obstacles, goals, and rewards (based on the actual action of the book). Finished video games should be handed in complete with a colorful, decorative cover.

Choice #2 – Rewrite a chapter from the perspective of Natalie or Piper

Here is your chance to show off your creativity as a storyteller! Pick any chapter from the book and rewrite it as if Natalie or Piper were telling it instead of Moose. What would the Esther P. Marinoff interview be like from Natalie’s point of view? How about meetings with Onion (#105)? How would the laundry scheme sound if it was described by Piper? How about Natalie’s birthday party? What would change if the story was not centered on Moose? Let your imagination run wild, but remember to carefully edit your work!

Choice #3 – Comic Book

Are you the artistic type? Use your skills as an illustrator to create a comic book showing the events of a memorable chapter or two from the book. Be sure you know the chapter(s) well before starting your comic book so that your project is an accurate representation of the actual story. Then, use lots of bright colors to bring your comic book to life! Be sure to finish your project off with an eye-catching cover.

Choice #4 – Interview With a Character

Play the part of a television or newspaper reporter and pick a character from the book to interview. Ask your chosen character in-depth questions about the events that happened in the book. You will have to provide a written transcript of the interview (your questions and the answers your chosen characters give). You may also choose to create an audio or video recording of your interview! The interview should consist of at least fifteen good questions and well-thought-out answers.

Al Capone Does My Shirts – Book Project – Scoring Rubric
